As a team, the workshop with LionHeart was a turning point for us. The biggest shift we experienced was moving from working side-by-side to truly connecting and communicating with each other on a deeper level. The training gave us tools, but more importantly, it gave us the courage to show up with honesty and authenticity, which changed the way we relate as colleagues and as people.

What made LionHeart different from any other program we have attended is the emotional depth and the humanity that Sam and his team bring. This was not about tips and tricks for better leadership; it was about creating a safe but powerful space where each of us could step into our own leadership in a real and lasting way.

There are moments from the workshop that we still refer back to — exercises that challenged us, stories that inspired us, and conversations that revealed new sides of ourselves and of each other. Those moments stayed with us and continue to shape how we collaborate.

The impact has been clear: our team is more cohesive, more open, and better equipped to handle challenges together. Conflicts that once felt heavy now turn into opportunities for growth and understanding. Our performance has improved not just because of new skills, but because we trust each other more deeply.

If we were to recommend LionHeart to another team, we would say: go for it if you want to go beyond the surface. This is an experience that will leave you changed — not only as professionals, but as human beings.

The three words we would use to describe Sam's facilitation are: authentic, inspiring, and transformative.

- Biggest shift or breakthrough:

I stopped trying to “perform” leadership and started showing up as myself—real, present, and grounded. That shift reminded me of how I felt when I first started selling FARO scanners with Sam’s quiet support behind me.

- LionHeart’s unique approach:

Most trainings throw frameworks at you—LionHeart made it personal. It felt more like a deep conversation than a workshop.

- Memorable moment:

There was a moment when we all shared something raw, no filters—and the room just held it. That kind of space sticks with you.

- Impact on team dynamics:

We started listening better, not just talking. It’s like the emotional static cleared and we could actually hear each other.

- Recommendation statement:

If you want to lead with heart and not just hustle, LionHeart will shake up how you think and how you show up.

- Three words for Sam’s style:

Grounded, warm, quietly powerful.

- Emotional depth and authenticity:

It made me reflect more, lead softer, and connect deeper—with my team and even with myself.

I joined multiple training courses and workshops with LionHeart Company.

- The workshops led to a radical change in my understanding of team management and theories of teamwork.
- The company adopted a theory of practical application and working in groups to address real cases, which provided a deeper understanding of the concepts and their implementation mechanisms.
- In one of the training sessions, each trainee was given a balloon tied to their foot. It was announced that the winner would be whoever kept their balloon intact. At that moment, everyone started attacking each other, even though if they had all stayed still, everyone would have won. I now use this scenario in the workshops I conduct for my own team.
- The workshops changed the team's thinking compared to traditional training, and this has had a positive impact on our approach to handling events.
- I recommend that anyone who wants a different and distinctive training experience should join the Lyon Heart team.
- A remarkable team. A team close to my heart. A team capable of instilling positivity.
- I have been influenced by the company's training methodology and the team's efficiency in conveying ideas and translating them into practical reality. I now benefit from some of these ideas in training and guiding my own team. I aspire to join this distinguished team.

During the LionHeart workshop, I experienced a real breakthrough in how I see both myself and my team. The activities weren't just about team building—they helped me grow my own skills and knowledge in leadership and communication.

What stood out most was the authenticity of the process. Unlike other trainings, it felt personal, practical, and deeply impactful. My team left more connected, more trusting, and better at working together.

If I were to recommend LionHeart, I'd simply say: "This isn't just training—it's a transformational experience." Sam's style is insightful, authentic, and empowering, and the lessons have stayed with me long after the workshop.

I forgot to mention ... also that the work shop was fully self-care, well-being and psycho-social support for each participant specially in (the beautiful nature) out door activities.

Thanks again Sam

Participating in the LionHeart workshop was a truly transformative experience for me and am sure for most of my colleagues .The biggest change I saw was a deeper awareness of authentic leadership style and a new level of confidence in vulnerable communication. Unlike other trainings that mainly focus on techniques, LionHeart's approach combines emotional depth and genuine connection, which made a lasting impact on me and our teams in the company .

Since the workshop, our teams have felt the positive effects. They've kept reaching out to share that the improved communication and sense of positivity have continued for months. It has helped build a sense of happiness and trust between team members, making the working environment more cohesive and joyful.

While it's hard to measure these benefits precisely, the overall feeling of connection, trust, and positivity has been priceless. It's created a more eager and collaborative team, aligned on shared goals, and has helped most colleagues to respect and value one another more. This has also had a positive impact on employee performance, especially by reducing unrespectful behavior and fostering a more strategic way of working. Even our senior managers attending the event emphasized the importance of the deeper messages shared.

If I were to recommend LionHeart to someone, I would describe it as a powerful experience driven by purpose, passion, and a dedicated team of hardworking team (Sam and the team). The event has even influenced how I lead and communicate, not just at work but also with friends and family — because style and being aware of vulnerable communications truly matters .

LionHeart started as a new school in human resources development in Palestine; they made a strong commitment to be different and creative in terms of content, trainers and methodology. They train from their hearts and build everlasting relations with their clients. I personally still remember many professional and warm moments especially during the experiential learning sessions. It is quite easy to recommend a car, a fridge or an iron; but to recommend a training team needs honesty and professionalism; with this I strongly and heartily recommend LionHeart and Sam Husseini.

The biggest shift or breakthrough I experienced during the workshops with sam lionhart is the true meaning of the concept, he doesn't give lectures he gives like activities that make you understand the concept very very deeply, so you and your group will experience the real meaning of what every bit of the concept means. Also regarding communication, sams approach differed from other training experience in that it was very personal yet very group oriented, also it made the communication between the group very easy because of the activities that were done, as I said before no lecturing no preaching its more of experiencing so when you experience the thing, its something you will never forget first, and second it will change you, your behaviour, and this is the maximum you want to reach because you want to change your behaviour and the group.

Why your continuation? Do you want to reach? Because you really want to change your behaviour and the group's behavior. Actually, there was this training that stood a long way with me. It was about communication.

He made like we were two groups and he asked one group to stay in the hall and the other one to go outside. And for the one outside, he said that I need you to, when you come in, every one of you go to one person and tell them an experience that you passed that really, really affected your life. And he asked the group inside that when they come and start speaking, you don't listen to them, you just do whatever you want. So when the group from the outside, and I was from the group outside, came in and started speaking to one of the group members, he did not listen. I was talking about something very important for me. And the person from the other group did not listen. So I was very, very offended. And I really understood the meaning of what it means when someone tells you something and you don't give full attention.

That was very, very impactful. And I really, if I want to recommend Lion's Heart to someone, I would say that they are, if you want to change your group's behavior, Lion Heart is the right address. And if I want to describe Sam's facilitation, I would say that he is a very genuine, very caring person that really wants to make change.

That he works not because it's just a... It's not just a work for him. No, it's like he's part of the experience. He really wants to change. So, and also I think emotionally you get like the real feeling of change because of the authenticity, because of the genuinity of delivering the information and the change, the behaviour change that you experience.

I had the privilege of participating as the President of PCBS and its Board of Directors in three workshops with LionHeart, and my experience was truly exceptional. The atmosphere was not only friendly but also insightful, setting it apart from traditional training methods. The way leadership topics were addressed was remarkable, providing a fresh perspective that resonated with us.

During the workshops, we experienced a significant shift in our understanding of leadership, particularly in recognizing the power of authentic communication. LionHeart's approach was refreshingly different, emphasizing genuine connections rather than conventional techniques, which made the learning experience feel much more impactful.

A standout moment for me was the open sharing session, where participants were encouraged to be vulnerable. This openness fostered a deeper understanding and connection among us, which, in turn, significantly improved my team's dynamics and cultivated trust and collaboration.

If I were to recommend LionHeart to others, I would describe it as a transformative experience that truly enhances leadership skills. Sam's unique ability to connect with individuals, his focus on each participant, and his heartfelt willingness to facilitate open dialogue were absolutely inspiring. Three words that encapsulate Sam's facilitation style would be engaging, insightful, and supportive.

The emotional depth of the workshop deeply resonated with me, encouraging not just personal growth but also professional development. I am grateful for the opportunity to participate as a leader and institution and look forward to more collaboration with LionHeart in my leadership journey. Thank you!

LionHeart pairs technical rigor with genuine curiosity, turning 3D survey into an open, creative medium. In Palestine especially, their work does more than document: it witnesses architecture's trace through time and makes that record accessible as shared infrastructure for designers, artists, and communities.

Testimonial for LionHeart 3D

Working with LionHeart is fueled by a shared passion for heritage, which is the main reason why LionHeart and Riwaq come together. We have collaborated on several projects and continue to recognize the ongoing importance of our partnership in documenting our Palestinian cultural heritage, which is threatened on so many levels.

Passion, experience, and professionalism are what make LionHeart stand out.”

Ayah – Riwaq Organization

Testimonial for LionHeart 3D

Participating in the LionHeart workshop, in collaboration with Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations in Jerusalem, was truly a transformative experience for me and my team. The biggest breakthrough was how the workshop created space for us to come together openly, sharing not only our successes but also our challenges. It inspired us to speak honestly, listen deeply, and learn from one another in a way we had not experienced before. What makes LionHeart's approach unique is the balance of structure and creativity. The workshop was very well organized and engaging, but at the same time, it left room for real human connection and authentic dialogue. This combination made it stand out from other training I have attended, which often feel either too rigid or too theoretical.

One moment that stayed with me long after the workshop was the sense of unity that emerged when the team reflected on the true meaning of teamwork, not just within the workshop space, but in our workplace as well. That feeling of shared purpose and inspiration is something we continue to carry forward. The impact on our team dynamics has been significant. We noticed improved communication, more openness, and a stronger sense of collaboration. It has helped us not only to perform better but also to feel more connected as colleagues and as people. If I were to recommend LionHeart to others, I would say: this workshop is for every organization, whether you are thriving or facing challenges. It takes you out of the office environment, helps your staff discover new things about each other and themselves, and leaves a lasting positive impression on both personal and professional levels.

Mr. Sam's facilitation was outstanding. He is highly skilled, empathetic, and has a remarkable ability to approach people in a way that makes them feel both safe and inspired. His style is best described as authentic, insightful, and empowering. On a personal level, the workshop helped me grow closer to my team. Professionally, I gained valuable perspectives and practical tools that I continue to apply. The depth and authenticity of the experience made it one of the most meaningful workshops I have attended.

Suheil Neiroukh – UN FAO organisation

My experience with LionHeart's sales workshop was both impactful and transformative. The most significant breakthrough for me was recognizing how emotional depth and authenticity can reshape the way we communicate and lead.

A defining moment during the workshop was the safe and open environment created by the facilitators, which allowed us to engage with vulnerability and honesty. This experience enriched my personal growth and had a profound impact on my team, enhancing our communication, trust, and overall performance.

If I were to recommend LionHeart, I would emphasize that their workshops offer more than professional development—they create space for deep personal insight that directly translates into stronger leadership and team dynamics.

Sam's facilitation style, along with his team's, can best be described as insightful, authentic, and empowering. Their ability to balance structure with emotional depth ensures that the experience resonates long after the workshop concludes.

On behalf of Global Communities Palestine (Formerly Known as CHF-International), I would like to share our great appreciation for the wonderful and highly useful Team Building Retreat Lion Heart Company organized for our entire team at Jericho Oasis Hotel. The team building activities employing games and structured exercises were so much fun but clearly designed to build trust between our staff and demonstrated how effective collaboration would be for our work and daily lives. The interactions around the exercises showed us how together we can solve problems, leveraging our collective brain power and abilities which helped us create a sense of unity as one organization particularly that we were struggling with the programs' silos unemotionally created over the years. The casual and fun outdoor games combined with the challenging problem solving exercises were unforgettable. The team talks about the retreat you organized as the best we've ever had and we continue to look at the photos with fondness that reminds us of how strong we could be as one team.

Thank you again to Lion heart, to your team and to you personally for an unforgettable and useful experience. We hope we will be able to have a similar one very soon as we know how positive it would be particularly for teams like ours that work in very difficult and challenging contexts particularly these days.

Lana Abu-Hijleh – Global Communities

CEO

Attending a LionHeart workshop was truly transformative. The biggest shift I experienced was realizing how much authentic communication can reshape not only how I lead but also how I relate to others. Unlike other leadership or communication trainings, LionHeart doesn't rely on surface-level techniques—it goes deep into emotional awareness and authenticity, creating space for real breakthroughs.

One moment that has stayed with me long after the workshop was when we practiced difficult conversations in a safe, supportive environment. The honesty and courage in the room made me realize that vulnerability is not a weakness but a strength in leadership.

The impact on my team was immediate—we became more open, supportive, and better at resolving conflicts before they escalated. I've noticed stronger trust and a willingness to collaborate in ways that simply weren't there before.

If I were to recommend LionHeart to someone, I'd say: If you want to grow as a leader in a way that is both deeply personal and profoundly practical, this is the workshop to take.

The three words I would use to describe Sam's facilitation are: authentic, compassionate, and powerful.

Personally, the emotional depth of the workshop helped me see how important it is to bring my whole self to leadership, not just the polished "professional" part. It made me braver both in my work and in my personal life.

Samah Alaydi – Birzeit University

Lecturer at Birzeit University

Attending the workshop with Lion Heart was very valuable to us. At a time when we were undergoing organizational transformation the training was effective in enhancing team spirit and minimizing the stress associated with change.

What stood out about Lion Heart's approach were three

Main characteristics:

- Respect, participation, and Empowerment of every single member of the team
- Positivity
- The incorporation of personal and work related ethical practices throughout the experience

The training was based on well thought out, culturally sensitive participatory excercises.

The impact on my team was immediate. We began communicating with more openness and respect, which improved both our collaboration and our overall performance. We also left with a stronger sense of alignment around our shared goals.

If I were to recommend Lion Heart to someone, I would simply say: If you want to experience leadership not as a theory but as a lived practice—one that touches both the heart and mind—this is the place to go.

Three words I'd use to describe Sam's facilitation style are: authentic, engaging, and transformative. The experience stays with you both on a personally and a professionally.

Iyad Masrouji – Jerusalem Pharmaceutical Company

My experience with Sam was a turning point in my professional journey, as I learned something truly valuable that we were never taught in schools or universities. Through his creative exercises—simple yet enjoyable games—he was able to deliver a powerful message to all participants about what it really means to think outside the box, how we can solve even the biggest challenges, and why teamwork is essential in reaching any goal. He showed us how important the role of each individual is, whether big or small, manager or employee.

Sam also developed our sales skills—not through lecturing, but by helping us understand the core principle: every person has a key, and to succeed in sales, we must find and use the right key to connect with them and achieve our targets.

LionHeart truly lives up to its name, planting in each of us the spirit of the lion—both in heart and in action—so we can reach the goals we aspire to. My heartfelt thanks go to the company, and especially to Sam.

Mustafa Tamimi – Arab Bank / Safa Bank

At Jawwal, we recently had the opportunity to participate in a Leadership and customer Engagement workshop delivered by Sam Hussini from Lion Heart. The experience brought a noticeable shift in how we approach leadership, communication, and customer interaction across our teams.

What made Lion Heart's approach stand out was its deep focus on authenticity, emotional intelligence, and practical, real-world strategies tailored to our unique market context. Unlike traditional training programs, this workshop connected deeply with our values and day-to-day challenges, offering tools that were immediately applicable.

A key takeaway that resonated across our team was the emphasis on proactive leadership and taking full ownership—reminding us that true impact begins with mindset and energy. The content around customer-centricity, sales psychology, and internal team dynamics had a lasting influence on both individual performance and team collaboration.

If we were to recommend Lion Heart, we'd say: This is not just training—it's a culture shift. Be ready for real, results-driven transformation.

We are proud to consider Lion Heart a true partner as we continue working relentlessly to bring Palestinians closer to each other and to the future.

Rana Awad - Jawwal

What we value most is that LionHeart's workshops are never just “activities.” They provide our staff with meaningful, practical tools to build stronger relationships, communicate effectively, and work as one. When you invest in creating teams like this, you're not just improving collaboration — you're planting the seeds for future leaders.

Rana Nasr – Palestine Monetary Authority

- What was the biggest shift or breakthrough you experienced during the workshop?

The biggest breakthrough was realizing how powerful authentic communication can be in building trust and alignment. It shifted the way I see leadership—not just as directing, but as deeply connecting.

- How did LionHeart's approach to leadership or communication differ from other trainings you've attended?

LionHeart's approach was refreshingly unique—it combined professionalism with authenticity, blending practical tools with emotional intelligence in a way I hadn't experienced before. It felt less like "training" and more like a transformative journey.

- Can you describe a moment that stood out or stayed with you long after the workshop?

One moment that stayed with me was when the trainer facilitated a powerful reflection exercise that allowed us to open up honestly and vulnerably. That moment of shared authenticity has continued to resonate with me both personally and professionally. We took pictures of the teams that played that exercise and those pictures stayed with us until today.

- What impact did the workshop have on your team's dynamics or performance?

The impact was immediate—our communication improved, collaboration felt smoother, and there was a noticeable uplift in trust and motivation. It strengthened our dynamics in a way that has already translated into better performance.

- If you were to recommend LionHeart to someone, what would you say?

I would say: If you want more than just a workshop—if you want an experience that transforms the way you lead, communicate, build teams and connect—LionHeart is the one to choose. They are simply exceptional.

- What three words would you use to describe Sam's facilitation or any of his team members' style?

Engaging, authentic, inspiring.

- How did the emotional depth or authenticity of the workshop affect you personally or professionally?

It allowed me to connect with myself and others at a much deeper level. Personally, it helped me embrace vulnerability as strength, and professionally, it gave me tools to lead with authenticity and empathy.

It is my pleasure to write this testimonial for Mr. Sam N. Husseini in recognition of his exceptional expertise in technical as well as sales and marketing training. I have had the opportunity to experience his professional guidance, and I can confidently state that his knowledge, clarity of delivery, and practical approach make his training highly impactful.

Mr. Husseini possesses a rare combination of strong technical competence with a deep understanding of market dynamics and customer engagement strategies. His ability to simplify complex concepts, tailor solutions to real business scenarios, and inspire confidence among participants distinguishes him as an outstanding trainer and mentor.

Through his structured methodology and engaging style, he not only equips participants with essential technical and commercial skills but also instills in them the confidence to apply these effectively in real-world environments. His professionalism, commitment, and passion for knowledge transfer are truly commendable.

I wholeheartedly recommend Mr. Sam N. Husseini for any organization or individual seeking to benefit from a results-driven and transformative training experience in both technical and sales & marketing domains.

1. LionHeart workshop was unlike any team building or communication training I've ever attended. It wasn't about buzzwords or surface-level strategies, it went much deeper.
2. What stood out right away was the emotional honesty in the space. You're not just learning how to communicate with others, sales skills, and leadership, you're learning how to lead yourself, from a place of clarity and integrity.
3. One moment that stayed with me happened during an outdoor session, at the top of a hill. We were asked to write down all the negative thoughts or limiting beliefs we were carrying, then tear the paper and throw it into the wind. It was symbolic, but surprisingly powerful. I still return to that practice when I feel overwhelmed or stuck. It grounds me every time.
4. Since the first workshop, I've noticed a meaningful shift in how I communicate, not just with others, but with myself. There's more presence, more intention, It's helped me lead with more authenticity and calm, especially in challenging situations.
5. If someone were considering working with LionHeart, I'd tell them: don't expect traditional. Expect to be moved. Expect to be challenged. And expect to walk away with something that actually lasts.
6. If I had to describe Sam's facilitation style in three words, I'd say: present, honest, and transformative. The authenticity he brings, not just emotionally, but energetically...creates a space where real change can happen
7. Financial planning manager

I am writing to wholeheartedly recommend Lion Heart and their exceptional teambuilding workshops. Our experience with them was transformative, both individually and as a team.

The biggest breakthrough we experienced during the workshop was recognizing how much potential existed in our ability to communicate honestly and empathetically. Through Lion Heart's unique approach, we were able to break down barriers of miscommunication and build a new foundation of trust that continues to strengthen our team.

Unlike other leadership or communication trainings we've attended, Lion Heart's approach was deeply authentic. Rather than offering abstract concepts or surface-level tools, Sam and his team created a safe space where real conversations could happen—conversations that were sometimes challenging, but always meaningful.

One moment that stayed with me long after the workshop was a guided exercise in vulnerability, where each team member (had to guide another special needs team member) both were special needs colleagues, one is blind and the other is deaf, they had to go places without being able to talk to each other, leading by doing, sometimes we had to carry each other, trying to path the way till we reach the goal was a huge challenge. Seeing colleagues open in such an authentic way created bonds that went beyond professional titles and roles. It was a turning point in how we relate to each other.

The impact on our team dynamics has been profound. We now communicate with greater openness, resolve conflicts more constructively, and operate with a stronger sense of shared purpose. Our performance as a team has improved not only because of clearer communication but also because we feel more connected and invested in one another's success.

If I were to recommend Lion Heart to someone, I would say this: If you want a workshop that doesn't just check a box but truly changes the way your team thinks, feels, and collaborates, Lion Heart is the partner you need.

In three words, I would describe Sam's facilitation style as: insightful, compassionate, and empowering.

Finally, the emotional depth and authenticity of the workshop had a lasting effect on me personally and professionally. It reminded me that leadership isn't about authority—it's about presence, empathy, and the courage to show up fully. That shift continues to influence how I lead and how I engage with my colleagues every day.

I cannot recommend Lion Heart highly enough. Their work is impactful, lasting, and unlike anything else we have experienced.

Sincerely,

We've had the opportunity to send our employees to several LionHeart trainings, and the difference has been remarkable. Each time, they return more trusting, more connected, and more intentional in how they work together. The boost in energy and collaboration across teams has been immediate — and it continues to last.

We sincerely thank you for the exceptional experience that you left us with in the recent team building event that was conduct over the two-day off-site program for Safa Bank employees. Your professionalism, creativity, and thorough understanding of our requirements, greatly contributed to the program's success and had a tremendously positive impact on our team. We value this fruitful collaboration and look forward to continuing our partnership with the same spirit of excellence.

On behalf of the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH, Palestine, we are pleased to provide this testimonial for Mr. Sam Husseini and the LionHeart company, following the successful completion of a highly specialized digital scanning and 3D reproduction project commissioned by GIZ.

As part of our efforts to support the Dar al-Consul project and its partners in showcasing the unique cultural identity of Jerusalem, GIZ contracted LionHeart to undertake the 3D scanning and reproduction of significant artifacts from the Custody of the Holy Land (CTS) collection. Among these was a rare 17th-century model of the Holy Sepulchre Church, consisting of 15 individual pieces and typically inaccessible to the public.

The objective of the assignment was to create precise, high-quality 3D scans and replicas of these pieces, enabling their display as interactive exhibits at Dar al-Consul.

We are pleased to state that Mr. Husseini and his team at LionHeart delivered this project with professionalism, technical expertise, and dedication. Their ability to combine advanced technical skills with cultural sensitivity and creativity was key to the project's success.

We confidently recommend Mr. Husseini and LionHeart company for any future assignments of a similar nature.

GIZ Organization

I wanted to express my sincere appreciation for the exceptional retreat you organized. It was truly interactive, dynamic, and full of fun. The activities effectively encouraged teamwork, creativity, and open communication, while also providing a perfect opportunity for stress relief and team bonding.

Even now, the photos from the retreat bring back the same positive energy and great memories, reminding us of the inspiration and joy we shared.

Thank you again for this wonderful experience.
